

TRUdocs™

TRUBIQUITY

ARE YOU LOOKING TO:

- ▶ Facilitate access to sensitive company data such as company standards or technical specifications?
- ▶ Enable global access to a centrally administered document library at all times?
- ▶ Make sure suppliers and partners are always equipped with the latest technical information?
- ▶ Automatically notify suppliers and partners about recent document changes and enhancements?

Alleviate the burden of managing and securely sharing corporate information.

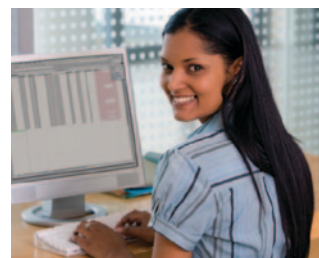

With growing networks of partners and suppliers worldwide, companies are finding it more challenging and costly to share key information with the necessary channels. Traditional file transfer methods are not flexible or secure enough to comply with current technological and regulatory demands when it comes to sharing data with individuals or organizations remotely.

As companies expand and reach into multiple sovereignty's, the need for a flexible file transfer system becomes very apparent. Manually notifying team members and partners of changes to critical business files and documents can prove to be costly. You must also confirm that the method you are delivering these documents and files in is not in violation of any compliance regulations or laws across different nation's legislation. When all of these factors are considered, simple communication becomes a daunting assignment. Automating these tasks not only speeds up this process but can also cut the cost of communicating these changes as well.
